

WOULD GIVE WIDOWS PASSES

REPRESENTATIVE GREENE OF DALLAS WOULD PASS AMENDMENT TO ANTI-PASS LAWS.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 21.—J. W. Greene, member of the legislature from Dallas county, has an amendment to the anti-pass bill of the State. By an amendment to Code section 7692, which he offered in the House Friday, he seeks to exempt from the anti-pass restrictions the widows and dependent children of deceased employees of railroads, and employees who have retired from active service by reason of age or physical infirmities, and their wives and dependent children.

Mr. Green is a railroad man himself. He said yesterday that, in his capacity as an officer of the Selma local, Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, instances have come to him where the grant of free transportation to dependents of dead or disabled employees of the railroads would have been mercy, but where the grant was prohibited because of the anti-pass law and its restrictions.

BAUCOMB MEETS DEATH

Fulton, Ky., Jan. 20.—Frank Baucomb, son of W. M. Baucomb, a wealthy business man of Seattle, Wash., died at a local hospital yesterday from a bullet wound sustained Wednesday night during an altercation with a restaurant keeper, Lee Carter, who had ejected the young man from his place of business. Baucomb, it is claimed, was advancing on Carter with an open knife when the latter drew a revolver and fired, the bullet finding lodgment in Baucomb's abdomen.

Paducah surgeons performed an operation, but Baucomb died.

According to the youth, it was a school boy's longing to "see some of the world" that, indirectly, was responsible for his death. He was attending college at Champaign, Ill., he said, when he became tired of the routine of his studies and decided to travel. He reached Fulton late yesterday. New Orleans was his ultimate designation, he said. Shortly before his death Baucomb wrote a pathetic message to his parents seeking forgiveness.

Carter is under arrest.

BOY 2 MONTHS OLD IS ARRAIGNED IN COURT

New Orleans, La., Jan. 20.—The youngest prisoner ever arraigned in a court in this state was a boy baby, aged 2 months, who was "arrested" and "pleaded" guilty before the juvenile court here yesterday of being "neglected."

The child's mother, a girl giving the name of Clara Effinnett, unmarried, left a hospital here with the tiny bit of humanity some time ago and walked the streets for days, finally giving up in despair and leaving the child with a family for safe-keeping.

In order that the child might become a ward of the juvenile court it was necessary to arraign it and enter a plea of guilty. The mother has disappeared, but "Jimmy" will be given a good home.

BURGESS THREATENS TO EXPOSE OTHERS

ANNISTON ALDERMAN PROMISES SENSATION FOR THE TOWN.

Anniston, Ala., Jan. 20.—That others may be implicated in the alleged irregularity in regard to the alleged granting of immunity from prosecution to Anniston blind tigers for a monetary consideration, is intimated by Alderman J. A. Burgess, of the Third Ward, in a statement given out here Thursday.

Alderman Burgess is said to have collected $100 from the various tigers of the city under promise that they would not be molested. As soon as the alleged irregularity came to the notice of the council, the alderman from the Third Ward was reprimanded. A storm of indignation resulted from the airing of the charges and at the next meeting of the Council a week ago, impeachment proceedings were instituted, the trial being set for next Thursday, January 25.

Mr. Burgess says that he considered resigning from the Council before the impeachment proceedings were instituted, but that since that action has been taken, he has definitely determined to fight the case to its end, if he has to go to the higher courts to do so. He has issued a deft to the Council and the policemen of the city to prove that he proposed the extension of immunity to the alleged tigers. He admits, however, that he collected money from some of the men, and says that while he regrets to do so, he will be forced to show that others were implicated in his acts.

RUNN AWAY FROM HER TEACHERS AT MONTEVALLO, ALABAMA

Selma, Ala., Jan. 20.—Miss Donnie Evans, of Fulton, a pretty student of the Alabama Girl's Industrial School at Montevallo, was taken charge of for a few minutes this morning upon the arrival of the Southern Railway train from Birmingham by Police Officer Blanton.

The young woman later was turned over to Conductor Charles Pierce of the Southern Railway train, which left here at 11:30 o'clock and was carried to her home at Fulton. The young woman is about 16 years old and is a daughter of Dr. Evans, of Fulton, who is a prominent citizen of the southern part of the State.

The holding of the young woman by a member of the Selma police department and the taking charge of her by Conductor Pierce was in accordance to instructions telegraphed here by Dr. Evans. Dr. Evans was informed this morning that his daughter had run away from the school at Montevallo and it was believed that she left school for the purpose of getting married.

To Police Officer Blanton Miss Evans talked freely this morning, and told of getting away from the school at Montevallo. She said that she had been persuaded to do so by an employe on the train and that this morning she met the train at Montevallo and got on it and that she had been locked in the ladies' toilet. She said she only intended to go as far as Thomasville where she would stay for a few days before going to her home at Fulton.

Probably the bootleggers expect a change in their business. Nearly everybody has a solution of the liquor problem.

Before the Alabama legislature adjourns some of its members will get a stiff cushion, long distance. But they probably had this in mind before they took their troubles before the voters.

We don't see how it is possible to use all of this pretty weather we are having now, knowing that February is still ahead of us, and it will have to be considered. There ought to be some way of conserving the best grades of weather.

There is a growing sentiment in this section of Alabama for good roads. Much money has been spent in this county already for good roads, and we haven't made any mean start, but there is much to be done yet. The way to have good roads advocates is to build them and let the people try them for a while.

A friend received a letter from the department of justice, marked Dothan. Didn't know they had such a department in the metropolis of the wiregrass.—Florida Democrat.

We had often wondered why Brother Smith didn't come to Dothan often and keep better posted on things we have.

Governor O'Neal is now in the hands of his friends. He may think that his sailing will be easy, but we don't think it will be. Sometimes people are cursed with too many friends, and we don't know but that O'Neal has some friends that reflect discredit upon him and his administration. The future depends largely how these friends act.

The boll weevil is on his way. He must be fought or he will clean up the bulk of a cotton crop. The state may take some steps to help fight him, but its efforts might avail nothing, for the government has been trying to do something along this line and has succeeded poorly. The people will learn, by experience, just how to deal with the boll weevil evil, and it will hardly be solved till he gets in our midst.

The weekly newspapers of Alabama have improved a great deal in ten years, with a few horrible exceptions. Where a neatly printed paper isn't gotten out, you can always tell that it is from an office where the old time printer doesn't work, but the forms thrown together by the boy who hasn't been on the job long. Some few of the papers really ought to buy a press, and some rollers, and a few buckets of real printing ink—for there are such things made—and then see the results.

TREATED DIFFERENTLY.

Adams county, Ohio, where it seems three fourths of the voters sold their votes, would be a good place for the women to start a suffrage movement, in a mild form. The women could save the country while their lieges were going through the motion of not voting at all for five years.

Before the franchise was taken from the negro in many of the Southern States it was not an uncommon thing to hear of vote buying. Not much of it now. People manage it different.

OVERWORKED

When a child first says a smart thing, it's funny. Then if it repeats it a few times, it is corrected, for there isn't anything cute about it to a few distinguished people. It was a news item, and the papers posted their correspondents to look all such cases up and publish them. Now that the Big Noise is just a private citizen, his passing over a few "lies" amounts to nothing, and but few papers refer to the incident. It is the old story of over-working a good thing.

MAN AND THE JOB

The man who is qualified to fill a job of a certain kind seldom walks the streets hunting work.

Big jobs are hard to fill, and they often stay vacant waiting for men big enough for them.

Cory resigned a $100,000 job the other day, or it was reported he resigned, and the corporation had to take a $50,000 man to fill the place because none of the other calibre could be found.

There is a fairly good job vacant in this town, waiting for a man to fill it. The First Baptist Church has been looking for a man for a long time, so long in fact, till it has about forgotten what it was looking for. It had looked for such high-class men before till it is a hard matter to find a man to fit the salary the church has been paying. In order to adjust matters, it has been decided to reduce the salary to a point where a fit can be found.

COULDN'T OBJECT TO THIS PAPER.

The Atchafalpa Globe has weekly edition, which is an eight column, eight page affair. Out of the 64 columns of the paper, but about 5 are devoted to advertisements. The other 59 columns are filled with high-class reading matter.

The remarkable thing about this paper is the price. It sells for 25c a year, and scarcely no advertising to back it up.

The editor of Globe recently retired, a rich man, as newspaper men view riches.

We have all met the man who had his paper discontinued because it was "full of advertisements." Probably no one has discontinued the Weekly Globe for that reason, but a different, but a well known class, might object to the "fine print," for the paper is set in small type. They have to put it small in order to get in all they want to say.

THEY WANT IT.

It was the vote outside of bent three that killed the constitutional amendment last fall, though it got a good hard knock in this beat, but it was the country boys that hit it the hardest.

It is thought that if the proposed dispensary bill passes, whereby a third of the proceeds are to go into the general school fund of the county and a third to the building to good roads, that it, too, will be defeated if left to the voters of this county, for the greatest majority of the people living outside of Dothan are opposed to the dispensary.

It is probable that $100,000 will go into the school and road fund of the county if dispensaries are established.

But if voted upon, the people outside of town will vote largely for saloons, as against the dispensary, thereby putting all of the revenue from them in the towns in which they are conducted.

But the people want what they want, and they cannot get over it till they receive it.

THE RIGHT IS COMING

The whiskey question is a big one, and is always before us, and it isn't fixing to get a rest in Alabama, either, however plainly it may look.

It will be the main question in the Alabama legislature for the next few weeks. Of course, other bills will come up, and much will be said and written on other subjects, but it will be the whiskey legislation the people of Alabama will care most for.

There is a general opinion that the prohibition laws are lost. Surely they will be in most of the big counties, but if the question is put before the people for a vote, as it no doubt will, then some of the counties of Alabama will continue prohibition. There are many counties that do not claim that prohibition is a failure, mainly in those counties where the officers are trying to enforce the prohibition laws. There are many people in Houston county who want prohibition.

and they are not willing to yield to those who do not, till a vote has been had.

It looks now, though, that if a vote is had, the county would probably go for whiskey, though what form is yet to be decided. Some want the dispensary and some want the open bar rooms. This will be a question for all the people to decide. They had as well make up their minds for the fight. It is just around the corner with a loaded club.

DAILY HEALTH CHAT

By Gordon Lloyd, M. D.

DROPSY

Dropsy is not a disease. It is a symptom common to several totally different diseases. Hence it is impossible for any one drug to cure all or even the majority of cases.

Speaking broadly, we may say all cases of swelling from excess of water in the tissues, are due either to heart disease, kidney disease, or liver disease. And the last of this trio of causes is far more important than is generally realized. The liver may cause a damming back of the major part of the blood in the veins coming from the abdomen and lower part of the body. This damming back of the blood causes water, or serum, to exude from the blood vessels into the tissues, there to accumulate and produce dropsy.

Likewise a weak or leaky heart may permit the blood in the veins of the lower extremities, where gravity and friction are great, to stagnate and serum to exude into the tissues. Accordingly swelling of the feet is an early symptom of certain forms of organic heart disease. But even transient exhaustion of the heart or clogging of the liver may bring on temporary swelling of no great importance.

The main function of the kidney is to extract water and certain dissolved waste products from the blood. If the kidneys become disabled and fail to extract the water, it accumulates in the body and constitutes dropsy. It is an interesting fact that the dropsy due to heart disease begins in the feet and that the dropsy due to kidney disease begins in the face. But the puffy eye of early Bright's disease may be stimulated by disorders other than this disease. Thus chronic arsenic poisoning of mild degree produces puffiness under the eyes.

Curious indeed, is that form of dropsy called hydrocephalus, or "water on the brain." Usually the water is no "on" the brain, but in it. There are four hollow spaces inside the brain called ventricles, and if, as a result of inflammation or malformation at birth, these ventricles get cut off from communication with the cavity of the spinal cord, the watery fluid normally secreted into the ventricles accumulates in them till the brain and skull become enlarged, sometimes enormously. Naturally this takes place only when the subject is young and the skull is still elastic. In most cases the victim dies shortly after birth, but few live to the age of 5 or 6 years and rarely they grow to fairly normal adult life. But the hollowing out of the brain interferes with its action and produces much irritability.

Sometimes a local dropsy is caused in one part of the body, a leg, for example, by the plugging up of one or more veins connected with the part. When dropsy develops in one leg only, it is always due to this cause.

As to treatment, the main thing, of course, is to treat whatever disease or condition is responsible for the dropsy. But in addition, copious sweating in a vapor cabinet, free purgation by salts, and in extreme cases actual puncture of the skin to let out the fluid is necessary.

But, as said at the outset, dropsy is not a disease.

HOOKWORM AND SANITATION

Their Relation to the People.

Trains, like the poor, we have always with us. The truth they contain is so very obvious that it passes it by as we do all the other obvious things in this world. We know a day, so much taken up with the deceitfulness of riches or of the crown, and other things, that it takes something very startling indeed to wake us out of our self-centered reveries.

Hence, a though we almost daily read on the calendars around Dothan that "Our national health is physically our greatest national asset," we are apt, like the devotee of old pass by on the other side, to notice that it was I our self said it and, helplessly, to a blissful ignorance of what it means that said.

Let us live but to read the daily papers, and the records of our time to become aware that this is no truism, but one of the most deeply rooted truths in our whole system of civilization.

Take the case of Panama for instance. Her whole history was a record of well nigh hopeless fight for advancement in the face of the apparently insuperable forces of disease and death that lurked there waiting for the worker. Once the question of the physical health of the workers was seen to be of paramount importance and measures were taken to insure the physical fitness of the inhabitants of Panama the current of her whole history was changed. Her economic efficiency was more than doubled, her work advanced and now the healthy condition of that community stands as a mighty monument to the wisdom of our country's government and men of science.

As it is in Panama, so is it all over the world. We recognize that a nation is the sum of its citizens, the blended whole of which the citizens are the units, and that without health of the individual we cannot have a nation physically great or great in any other way.

Nowhere has the importance of this fight for physical efficiency been more fully exemplified than in the present almost world-wide fight for the extermination of the Hookworm. Today the battle is being waged in the United States, in England, Germany, Belgium, France, Hungary, and other countries of Europe. In India, Japan, the Islands of Asia and the far west and east, in Porto Rico, Cuba, and South America, the fight goes on. Every where the Hookworm has been found a war of extermination has been begun—a war that will not end till this disease—one of the most terrible in its insidious effects that man has ever had to deal with—is driven from the face of the earth and we can rest a moment in the knowledge that one more enemy of man has been conquered before we take up arms again and rally forth to attack the next of man's mortal foes.

It may be of interest to look briefly at the manner in which this disease is being attacked in different parts of the world. By doing so we may learn something that will help us in our work here in the United States.

On one point all workers in common agree and that is that legislation on sanitation will never of itself be productive of much good. Man is not by nature a law-abiding creature. He instinctively distrusts laws, especially those that tend to curb his natural tendencies to do as he likes. From our childhood days we have looked forward to the Fourth of July when we could blow off our fire crackers and the ends of our fingers, and shout loud and long about our glorious independence. And even now when we are supposed to have arrived at the years of discretion, how many of us remember that what we fought for was our National Independence and not merely the liberty to infect our neighbors with our hookworms if we so desired?

Many of us have yet to learn not to confuse liberty with independence and to take to heart the lesson taught by one of the greatest leaders in the French Revolution, that one man's liberty ends where his neighbor's liberty begins.

Legislation must be backed by education. We must let the people know why we pass sanitary laws and show them that these laws are made to benefit the people and not to favor any special person. The average reader is not aware of the real duty the public health service has in getting sanitary measures carried out. We had an interesting experience not long ago. After a sanitary campaign the local sanitary officer, noting the enthusiasm at the meeting, decided to get going and clean up. He got going and very soon after, one hundred and twenty people signed a petition for his removal.

These people meant well. They thought the sanitary officer was a nuisance. They had not considered that the state of their back premises was a nuisance to the neighbors. They only considered nuisances to themselves.

In any place, objection was used to the report on the insanitary conditions of the town because for each, they were advertising it as a summer resort and they feared it might hurt the place. The people also meant well, but they were only thinking of their own town and the money their advertising brought to it. They forgot about the poor sick people who might come here to regain their health. They thought of the units not of the whole.

These are some of the difficulties we have to contend with. We have to educate the educated.

A visit to Porto Rico well illustrates the value of education. When the campaign was started there a enormous number of people were infected. Now, in a few years the percentage has been reduced greatly and that not by law making. A more ignorant or oppressed people it would be difficult to find, yet they saw the wonderful change among those who were treated and learned the lesson of sanitation and now what do they do? If the sanitary arrangements of the places where they work are not satisfactory they agitate for sanitary measures. Can you imagine us agitating for legal restrictions on our glorious independence?

The ways of the people of Europe are not our ways. They do things differently, but they get results. In Belgium and Westphalia they found many of the mines infected with hookworms and consequently most of the miners were hookworm patients. They built a hospital for treating hookworm disease and examined all the workers. Those who were infected were put in the hospital and treated till free of the disease and then allowed to go back to work. It was not the workers' fault that they got hookworm disease, so they were paid compensation wages while in hospital. In other places they will not allow a man to work till he has been examined and found free from hookworm infection. In all cases they couple up the treatment with improved sanitation and education and the results have been remarkable. In the coal mines of Westphalia in 1904 there were 13,861 cases of hookworm disease. In 1908 four years later there were only 1,171 cases although as many people were working there in the same mines. Why? Because the infected men were taken out and cured. The sanitary arrangements were put on a satisfactory basis thus preventing re-infection of the mines and the people were educated and shown how to manage the sanitary arrangements of their own homes.

In England, in the mines of Cornwall similar work has been done. The workers are treated when they begin to look sick. Sanitary laws were passed but had little effect until the men were educated up to a knowledge of the dangers of their previous mode of living. Now the sanitary laws are of value because the people understand the reasons for them.

So it is everywhere. Two things must be done—do them how you will. The actual worms must be removed from the infected patients, and the people must be taught what it means to have improper sanitation, and what will follow if proper sanitation is not installed. Hookworm disease is either going to increase or else it is going to be stopped. It will not stop itself. We have to teach the people but what have we to tell them? We have to tell them that, however ugly it sounds, hookworm is preeminently a filthy disease, not a disease that occurs only among filthy people, but one that infects the innocent and cleanly when they are brought in contact with the results of the filthy habits of others. That is why in which hookworm is spread and that is why we have to tell them that sanitation which is the gravest danger to the community has

That in large districts in the country there is no attempt at sanitation, and that as long as that state of affairs lasts, hookworm disease is here and here to stay. That, independent of or no independent, it is every man's duty to see to the sanitary condition of the community, either by reporting insanitary conditions where he finds them or by giving his support and help to every movement that will result in the establishing of a more careful sanitary supervision of his district.

Such work will not only rid the country of hookworm disease, but will rid it of about 25 per cent of all other diseases. Is that not worth striving for?

Let every reader try to recall the name of some one—wife, child, relative or friend who died of typhoid fever, of malaria or diphtheria, of small-pox, of hookworm or of the other contagious diseases and let him remember that his or her death was due to faulty sanitation in his district or in the district where the disease contracted then. Let him ask himself if he will rest satisfied if he has done that can be done to rid the terrible roll of unnecessary deaths among our people.

J. FRASER ORR

Unconventionalities.

A compilation of unused expressions, by the Chicago Tribune.

"Bridget, you needn't tell him I'm not at home, just say I don't wish to see him."

"I may as well tell you, Mr. McHenry, that I am not buying this hair dye for an elderly friend, I expect to use it myself."

"I won't pretend Mrs. Kawler that the reason why I never have any photographs taken is because they never look like me, they always do."

"Gentlemen, I'm not going to ask you my friends have not asked me to be a candidate for this office. I'm a candidate for it, b'gosh, because I want the salary."

"Mr. Hilker there's no use in pretending that I can wear a No. 4. I am not ashamed of the size of my foot. Show me a No. 6 1/2."

"No, George, I don't smoke cigars because I like 'em better than ten cents cigars, it's because they're cheaper."

"I don't know why I'm lending you this money, old chap, I do it with great reluctance."

"Dear Sir, We return this story to you for the reason that it is absolutely worthless. We wouldn't publish it even if you paid us for doing so."

"I am not surprised, Mr. Well, to learn that you are 59 years old. You look it."

What He Was Thinking About.

A grandfather of a South Philadelphia home walked into the sitting room and found his grandson in deep thought. Says the Philadelphia Times:

"John," he said, "I will give you a nickel if you will tell me what you are thinking about."

No effort was produced on the grandson at all.

"I say, John, I will give you a quarter if you will tell me," said the grandfather.

With that remark the grandson jumped up and demanded the money which was readily turned over to him.

"I was thinking, grandpa," he said, "how I could earn some money without working for it."

Foley Kidney Pills.

Are tonic in action, quick in results. A special medicine for all kidney and bladder disorders. Mary C. Abbott, Wolfboro, N. H., says: "I was afflicted with a bad case of rheumatism, due to uric acid that my kidneys failed to clear out of my blood. I was so lame in my feet, joints, and back that it was agony for me to step. I used Foley Kidney Pills for three days when I was able to get up and move about and the pains were all gone. This great change in condition I owe to Foley Kidney Pills and recommend them to any one suffering as I have." For sale by N. H. McCallum.

GOING TO BED

Those of us who have come from farm or village have remarked how much longer it takes us to dress in the morning or undress at night than it did when we were boys, and we have feared that we were getting lumbering and ineffectual of equipment. Any ordinary boy can wash and dress to be exact, dress and wash in five minutes and be ready for breakfast, and he can undress for bed in a minute. It takes a city man an hour or more between arising from bed and sitting down at the table, and half as long when it comes to retiring. But the difference is not between youth and age or city and country, but just between donning and doffing of clothes and doing a number of other things which were never dreamed of in the barefoot boy's philosophy. What does the latter do at night? Merely sheds shirt and trousers and slips a nightgown over his head. In the morning he reverses the procedure and dips his face in a basin.

When the city man retires he goes through his evening stunts, shunting over his constitutional into the last moments of the day. Often he takes a bath then he massages his hair. Then he clears out his head with a nasal douche. Then he drinks a glass of sour milk and eats an apple. Then he brushes his teeth, rubs his gums with a zinc preparation, rinses his teeth with milk of magnesia, swallows a little quinine to head off that cold and bathes his eyes in a salt solution. In the morning he does most of these things over again and throws in a shave. Rising and retiring have been developed into a series of operations the purpose of which is to keep the body clean, to preserve the health and to retain all its assets of teeth and hair unimpaired.—New York Mail.

Now, I can walk four miles and do my work with much more ease. I praise Cardul for my wonderful cure." Cardul is successful in benefiting sick women, because it is composed of ingredients that act specifically on the womanly constitution, relieving headache, backache, irregularly, misery and distress. Only a good medicine could show such continual increase in popularity as Cardul has, for the past 50 years. Try Cardul, the woman's tonic.
